JOB DESCRIPTION

We are looking for sharp, passionate and out-of-the-box thinkers to join our product management team. Kontera is the leading provider of In-Text Related Content and Advertising Solutions for web publishers, users and advertisers.

Are you interested in helping us to increase the number of unique users beyond 150 million? Does the term "The Semantic Web" lightness your imagination? Would you like to take part in shaping the web's future by delivering on Kontera's vision: connecting the web's information?

We are looking for product managers who have the unique combination of: product strategy, deep understanding of customer requirements, technical depth and project execution. You will be working closely with the R&D team and must be able to translate customer requirements and business needs into technology investments using agile development methodologies (scrum). You will also work closely with our field facing teams: advertising sales, business development, account management, and marketing and with our customers and partners to create relationships that help to ensure Kontera's success in the market place. The ideal candidate will have an excellent blend of business and technical skills along with a successful track record in managing products through at least one complete software release cycle.

Responsibilities:

- Develop product requirements backed by deep market and business perspective
- Lead the discussion with R&D towards building a top notch technical solution and architecture to answer the product requirements
- Drive product execution throughout the product life-cycle, using scrum

- Help in product communication to the field organizations in collaboration with marketing

Thought leadership: bring innovation into and beyond the product

WORK EXPERIENCE REQUIREMENTS

- At least 5 years of Product Management experience
- Experience in defining and delivering a product through a full software development cycle (conception to release)
- Excellent English written and verbal communication and presentation skills
- Experience with Internet applications and advertising is an advantage
- Development hands-on and management experiences are an advantage

EDUCATION REQUIREMENTS

- Bsc. in computer science
